Hello Yet Again!

After two years of being the troop historian, I walked into this year with my job outlined and polished. All I'd have to do was consider a few ideas to shake things up and tweak my system. But overall, this year was one that I could use to enjoy the design I'd constructed over the previous two.

Of course, much has happened in the past twelve months. So much so that looking back to the beginning of it all is like recalling a dream, one that's been laid down to rest for quite a while.

Reader, I hope that you can find some nostalgia and joy in viewing Reflections. After all, appreciating our yesterdays is as valuable as planning our tomorrows and living our todays.

See You Next Year!

I've had the opportunity to learn a lot from this year as well as experience lots of fun and exciting moments. It's spectacular to be a part of the Boy Scouts of America, and Troop 280 is special to me.

For my fourth year, I may be taking on an apprentice. It will be my final round in the Historian position, so it's a good time to consider how the job will be continued when I step down, if it continues at all.

Our new leadership team is very promising. Good things are to surely come for the troop. We are in an excellent place, and the future holds much for us.

But it won't hurt to keep my fingers crossed and eyes peeled.
